PERSONALITY EDITION

IN PSYCH: MYERS-BRIGGS

Some of you have probably taken the Myers-Briggs test before. If you have, please report your type to the link at the end of this article. Or take the test again; your results could change.

For those who have not taken the test, the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator (its formal name) is a test that measures a person's personality in four areas.

The first is your attitude towards the world. This can either be E for extraverted, meaning that you tend to be active towards the external world, or I for introverted, meaning that you tend to be active towards the internal world.

The next is based on how you perceive the world. This can be S for sensing, meaning you prefer to trust what is tangible, or this can be N for intuition, meaning you prefer the abstract and theoretical.

The third is based on how you judge your perceptions. This can either be T for thinking, meaning you prefer to be more rational, or F for feeling, meaning you prefer use your emotions.

The fourth is based on whether you prefer to perceive more or judge more when relating to the outside world.

To find out more info, to take the test, and to find out your personality go to the link below.

And then report your type to our house poll at this link.

The results of the poll will be reported in a future TP.

IN ADVENTURE: GLEN ONOKO FALLS

This beautiful view can be seen only from the peak of Glen Onoko Falls, a waterfall located in Jim Thorpe, PA. Jim Thorpe is a quaint little town up in the Pocono Mountains. I was lucky enough to visit it this Fall Break and it was an exciting journey. The hour and a half hike up the falls is great exercise and really puts you right in the midst of Mother Nature. Occasionally the hike can be a bit treacherous so be sure to wear proper hiking clothes or prepare yourself for the pain of a few falls. If you have a GPS, then you can find a few geocaches (to be discussed in a future edition of The Toilet Paper) along the way. If you get the chance to take a break from your studies for a day, I highly recommend going here.

PIECES BY JADE MASTERS (QUAD)

My mind is a puzzle
A puzzle with pieces
Pieces that do not fit
Fit they do not
Not sensible in my head
My head is confused
Confused by the differences
The differences that make us
Make us who we are
We are what we wish
We wish to belong
To belong to a family
A family and friends
Friendship that lasts
Lasts through the ages
Ages of time
Times gone by
By the way
The ways that we choose
We choose the paths
The paths that we walk
We walk through valleys
Through valleys to mountains
Mountains that we climb
Climb to the top
The top is the goal
The goal in my mind

TECH TIPS: MULTIPLE INBOXES

Do you use Gmail? Do you get dozens of emails a day (read: are you in college)? Do you need help organizing all those e-mails?

Then use Gmail's Multiple Inbox feature. This feature divides up the usual window into multiple sections of different emails based on searches that you specify. You can have up to 5 inbox panels.

Keep unread emails in one with the query "is:unread"

If you like to star things in Gmail to indicate their importance, use "has:yellow-star"

If you utilize Google Voice and have it go to your email, you can use the query "SMS from"

If you have Google Calendar send you reminders, separate those out with "from:calendar-notification@google.com"

With the right search, you can separate anything! Try it out by enabling it in Labs in your Gmail settings today.
